

ANTI-QUAYITES HOLD A MEETING MET AT THE PHILADELPHIA ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Congressman Dalsell the Principal Speaker—He Charges Senator Quay with Disloyalty to His Party and to the McKinley Administration, John Wanamaker Occupies a Box.

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—A mass meeting of citizens in opposition to the reelection of Senator Quay was held at the Academy of Music tonight. Major E. A. Hancock, of this city, presided, and a large delegation of anti-Quayites from the legislature, headed by Senator F. H. Johnson, came from Harrisburg. Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker occupied a box, but did not speak. The speakers were Senator F. H. Johnson and Congressman Dalsell, of Pittsburg; Senators Henry C. Lehman, of Lehigh, and Weller, of Bedford, and Representative Koenig, of Somerset.

In the course of his address, Congressman Dalsell said: "Mr. Quay has been called the Napoleon of politics. Let us venture to predict in his Waterloo—after Waterloo comes St. Helena. This is a matter that is capable of being discussed and determined with coolness and judgment and without heat or passion. It is consistent with the honor of Pennsylvania that Mr. Quay should represent it as senator in the United States? I venture to suggest that it is neither for the honor of Pennsylvania nor for the welfare of the Republic that Mr. Quay should be re-elected. I venture to suggest further that under existing circumstances Mr. Quay ought not to permit his name to be used as a candidate for that office. I venture to say that I can give many reasons in support of this proposition. In the first place, Mr. Quay represents that which is demoralizing in politics; he represents that which is debasing to public opinion; that he has degraded the popular morals; that which defeats honorable ambition, and that which stimulates unworthy ambitions, which may be used for his own personal ends. He has turned the Republic into a machine which has no excuse for its existence save that it serves his political fortune."

CHARGES OF DISLOYALTY. The speaker charged that Senator Quay was among those responsible for the defeat of Blaine in 1888; that he was hostile to the Harrison administration and that he had influenced the Pennsylvania delegation to the St. Louis convention in 1886 to vote for himself instead of McKinley. Continuing he said: "Mr. Quay has not been loyal to the McKinley administration. During the critical period when the nation was hating on the verge between war and peace he advocated the policy in opposition to the president, of recognizing the independence of Cuba, the absurdity of which is now apparent to everybody. He then turned the audacity to send his secretary over to the house of representatives and gather together the representatives of Pennsylvania in a caucus to pledge them to vote against the policy of the administration. I was decidedly in the majority. I was there and therefore am able to say that some of the Quay adherents expressed their willingness to obey his will and fly in the face of the majority of their party in the house. When, however, a roll call was taken, the Quay adherents, as a party, refused to vote with him. I was not a part of this effort, and therefore I do not think that you, Mr. Quay, should be re-elected."

CONGRESSMAN DALSELL CONCLUDED with a review of the events of the past four months, including the conspiracy charges pending against Senator Quay, and the conditions leading up to the present legislative deadlock.

MEN BEFORE THE BOILERS. Hard Lot of Those Who Receive Little Credit. If you were sealed up in a heated iron tank floating on the seas, and hampered off by missiles which now and then let in daylight and splinters, you would get a dim idea of the lot of the engineer's men aboard a battleship in action. But the men who are called to work in the hot, busy, and you would get mad in your tank. The engineer's men aboard a battleship in action are not so much as the men who are called to work in the hot, busy, and you would get mad in your tank. Primrose and Dockstader's Minstrels. A very enjoyable minstrel entertainment was given at the Lyceum last night. The company, headed by George Primrose and Lew Dockstader, who are two of the most entertaining of the great tripe of minstrel men. Little Jimmy Wall is also a member of the company. There may be a number of face artists in the country, but Wall, but they don't reach these parts very often. Lew Sully contributed materially to the funmaking last night and Manuel Roman and W. H. Thompson sang in a paper variety.

Miller in "Heartsease" Tonight. The romantic drama, "Heartsease," which Henry Miller offers at the Lyceum Theatre, has been a success since he gave here so satisfactory a performance last season, was received with such favor during its first run, over one hundred nights at the Garden Theatre, New York, that, after the first, the strong sense of the third act, Mr. Miller was obliged to go before the curtain many times and acknowledge the kindly but insistent demands of his audience. As Eric Temple, the young composer, robbed of his opera, which he has no other copy, he has strolled into the lobby of the Lyceum Theatre to listen to the new work of some other author to be sung that night. As he enters the strains of a melody seem familiar. Having just recovered from an illness he thinks it must be a variety of his own work. Little by little it becomes certain he is hearing the strains of the young composer, robbed of his opera, which he has no other copy, he has strolled into the lobby of the Lyceum Theatre to listen to the new work of some other author to be sung that night.

"The Ivy Leaf" at Academy. "The Ivy Leaf" will be the attraction at the Academy of Music on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The play, which was produced by the Lyceum Theatre, is a comedy in three acts. It is a tale to tell and it tells it through the interpretation of clever actors in a way that never fails to bring down the house. The play is a comedy in three acts. THE MARKETS. The People's Exchange.

Wall Street Review. New York, Feb. 8.—Stock prices closed strong with most stocks ruling above yesterday's closing. Although the greater part of the forenoon session extreme weakness prevailed in practically all classes, the result was a net gain of 1 1/2 points. The market was buoyant and indicated a fair supply of stock. Practically all the local commission houses were in the market at the opening of the large part of which sales were apparently due to exhausted margins.
